Arts 214 Midterm Presentation

A Mini-Magazine Project Planning Presentation

Presented by: Gilbert Salas

The Concept

For my mini-magazine website I will be diving into some of the nitty gritty technical sides of the I.T industry.

Issues that most people would find obscure, but others are genuinely interested in the appropriate solution.

The Creative Brief

- What is this project?
- Where and how will it be used?
- Who is it for?
- Why are we doing it?
- What needs to be done? By whom? By when?

What is this project?

As the world of technology rapidly evolves; I like to stay on top and head of current trends. For example: cloud computing, nanotechnology, machine learning/artificial intelligence, security, development.

This project is working as a personal technical blog that I will update with items that I personally find interesting.

Where and How will It be Used?

This website is working as a personal endeavor for school. However, it has potential to become an active working blogspot for my personal use. Eventually I’d like to setup a sign-up form for an e-mail distribution list.

Who is it for?

This page will be for those who have a particular interest in the technology line of work. From beginners to technical experts.

Why are we doing it?

At the moment I don’t have a real choice, it’s an assignment. But I would definitely like to spread awareness about the technology that people use daily.

What needs to be done by who?

This website will probably never be finished. It will need updates and maintenance rather frequently. The front-end development is in the works but I’d like to move onto a back-end and improve certain scalable aspect. Like a database of user.
